PRECIOUS METALS COMMENTARY

Gold eased off on Friday, as global equity markets recovered from the Wednesday/Thursday sell off. However, for the first time in quite a while, we saw gold act as a traditional safe - haven asset along with bonds. The flight from equities to gold was extremely short-lived. However, it confirmed one of the primary conventional intrinsic components of gold: its role as a safe-haven asset.

In addition, on a technical level, yesterday's strong price advance took current pricing above $1,200, a key psychological level of either resistance or support, and more importantly above the 50- day moving average. The last occurrence of gold closing above its 50-day moving average was on April 20.
