PRECIOUS METALS COMMENTARY

Gold and silver prices are sharply down in early-afternoon U.S. trading Thursday, on heavy profit taking by the short-term futures traders following recent good gains. Technically, both markets are seeing downside technical corrections, which are not unexpected. Gold prices hit a 10-month high on Wednesday and silver futures closed at a seven-month high close. April gold futures were last down $17.30 an ounce at $1,330.70. March Comex silver was last down $0.352 at $15.825 an ounce.

No significant chart damage was inflicted in gold or silver markets today, but solid follow-through selling pressure on Friday would begin to produce near-term technical damage. If recent history plays out again, gold and silver bulls will step in on Friday to buy the dips.

There were new reports out today that the ongoing U.S.-China trade talks, taking place this week in Washington, D.C., are going well. That's allowing a bit more trader and investor risk appetite to be present in the marketplace. Reuters reported late Wednesday that U.S. and China officials are outlining a deal to end the trade war. The report said agreements in principle are being drawn up in six major areas. Reports also said U.S. President Trump and Chinese President Jinping may hold a summit in March to finalize the deal.
